MISSION, VISION + VALUES

King's Cross is a church family on mission with Jesus. Here are the things we value that shape everything we do.

SCRIPTURE (2 Timothy 3v16-17)

We value Scripture because it's essential.

We believe God actually wrote a book called the Bible, and that people are radically changed in hearing it's truths proclaimed as the very words of God.

GATHERING (Hebrews 10v25)

We value gathering together because it's essential.

Christianity is not meant to be lived alone, but with other brothers and sisters in Christ. Christians cannot grow effectively in isolation.

That's why we invite all members to commit themselves to our church gatherings.

We gather corporately for our Sunday services and weekdays in Community Groups.

“The church is not a place, but a people saved by Jesus who now relate to God as Father and each other as brothers and sisters.”

“The fact that we are a ‘church family’ is important because being on mission with Jesus is not something we do alone, but something we do together with other followers of Jesus.”

PRAYER (James 5v16)

We value prayer because it's effective.

We believe God is actually listening when we pray, that he hears the pleas of His people, and powerfully moves in response.

JESUS (Romans 11v36)

We value Jesus because he's everything.

Jesus is God in human flesh who came to our world to fulfill all the promises of God for us by living a perfect life, dying for our sins and rising on our behalf.

Jesus is the true prophet, the true priest, the true king, the true sacrifice, the true lamb, the true light, the true bread, the true and only way to God. Put simply, we are not the hero of the story, Jesus Christ is. We aim always to show that his work is both the grounds and the goal of our salvation and the motive which we appeal to for change. Doing this will bring radical change in ourselves, in the church and to the lost.

Therefore, faith in Jesus cannot be relegated to a private experience on Sundays; it is fundamental to our day to day lives. There is no area in all of reality that is exempt from Christ's reign.

Running Life Explored in a coffee shop

ON MARCH 8, 2022 / BY LAURENEWELCH

This winter, a small team of church members and their pastor ran Life Explored in a San Diego coffee shop. Each week, their friends, coworkers and even strangers joined in. A biologist, a Hollywood script writer, yoga students, and workout buddies were some of those that gathered to discuss questions of life, meaning and Christianity.

Soon, the course caught the attention of a local newspaper, who wrote an article about the group. The paper noted that while not everyone agreed with each other and discussion was lively, the atmosphere was warm and welcoming. The Sierra Corban, co-leader of the weekly series, is a member of King's Cross Church.

Hosted by King's Cross Church, a series of weekly gatherings was held at a Pacific Beach bakery last fall.

Spiritual reset for life's deep questions hosted by local church

Next free weekly series starts Jan. 16 in Pacific Beach

BY REGINA ELLING

If you're all about New Year's resolutions — those new commitments to make new beginnings in our eating, our exercising, our housekeeping and more. But some resolutions are deeper, and to help with that a spiritual reset is being offered through a program hosted by King's Cross Church. It is a non-denominational church on the border of Pacific Beach and La Jolla. Last fall the church hosted a series of weekly meetings for anyone looking to discuss serious questions ranging from life to faith and spirituality. Another series will be offered through Feb. 27 at a local venue. Obadiah, lead pastor and one of the hosts due to the pandemic. Born in Okla., Obadiah and his family moved to Southern California in 2000. "After COVID and the lockdowns and all as a result of the pandemic, people were asking really hard, really important questions about life — more so than ever before," he said. "They said one they felt like those past lives to be more in line. So I started asking ourselves what would we want to ask if we were in a church to have a conversation like this. "Their answer was a program would be "everyone pursuing spirituality and joy." The church asks attendees to be open minded and ready to have an honest conversation.

In the fall, meetings were held at Church's Best Bread, a local Pacific Beach bakery. Participants don't have to be members of the church, aren't asked to bring a Bible, make any donations, pray or sing — they don't even have to ask any questions. The meetings are not a place for laypeople debate. The event is hosted by a Christian church with its own convictions.

During the last gathering to coffee washed through the meeting. About 15 people — a mix of Christians and non-believers — were seated at tables clustered around the monitor, discussing a short video they just watched.

After the general discussion, Sierra Corban, the event's co-leader and a local talk. Using modern language, the 26-year-old explained some selected biblical passages.

Corban is a scientist at the UCSD Caudron Laboratory studying diabetes genetics. As part of organizing the series, he said the decision to hold meetings in a public, more neutral, challenges. For example, she was among those who met with the bakery owner to negotiate use of the space.

"But everything has worked out easier and better than I anticipated," she said. "I'm excited to build relationships with a public, more neutral, challenges. For example, she was among those who met with the bakery owner to negotiate use of the space."

Although Corban had invited him several times, Tuccione said he wanted to attend the last meeting.

learned she would be the speaker. As Corban kept the conversation moving, Tuccione explained his understanding of what had been said.

"What's the difference between me being a good guy and me being a scripturalist? He put out love in someone who has the ability to read death."

The conversation continued, lively and serious by turns. Although there were plenty some differences of interpretation or belief, the conversation was respectful.

Meanwhile, Gary Miller of Pacific Beach hadn't missed any of the weekly sessions. When asked why he initially decided to attend, the Hollywood agent and script writer responded with "That's a good question." After mulling it over briefly, he said, "As I look back, I think my coming here was a sort of divine led. I kind of came in with a book, Remember."

But Miller said he ultimately wanted to improve his own relationship with God and be able to help others. He said he often asks his team for relationship into his faith.

At one point after the video, some passages from the Book of Matthew were read during the discussion. "The books of the Bible were written hundreds of years after Jesus' death — how much of the text after Jesus' death —

Gary Miller attended all of the weekly meetings.
